2007 Institute Certificate Module, UK

the worship artisan

What does it mean to be a worship leader, a creative worship artisan, with the call to lead 21st century people into engagement with God and their world? From the worlds of spiritual formation, Trinitarian and creational theology, aesthetics and classical faith literature come ancient voices that call the lead worshiper forward in our generation.

St. Stephen's University and The Institute Of Contemporary & Emerging Worship Studies present a UK Module Short Course in Worship Leader Formation, Sept. 24-28, 2007.

This is a university "mini-course" designed specifically and exclusively to deepen experienced lead worshipers, offered in an informal, study retreat format – optimized for the creative leader.

Led by internationally respected worship leader, writer and artist Dan Wilt (M.Min.), this 4 day module course will engage worship leaders in spiritual formation readings and reflection, while deepening the biblical, theological and creative worldview of today's worship artisan and spiritual leader.

Fee covering course tuition, lodging and meals at the beautiful Westwood Retreat Centre (www.westwood-centre.org.uk) in Huddersfield is £500. Participants receive a Certificate in Worship Leader Formation from the Institute and St. Stephen's University in New Brunswick, Canada.

The Institute – investing today's worship artisan with the riches of the past – toward our emerging future. www.theworshipleader.com.

Apply to address on reverse. If you're a worship leader in this generation, you're invited.

Space is limited, so apply by August 1, 2007.
